TRAVEL PROGRAMS SPONSORED BY INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION IN SUMMER SESSIONS, 1960

By Harold A. Haswell, Bernice R. Retzlaff,
and Donald F. Warner, Programs Branch

OE-54028

Study abroad, one of the most rapidly developing aspects of American higher education, is expressed in a variety of plans. Some of these plans connected with summer sessions include classes in subjects such as art, music, geography, and history transplanted to overseas centers maintained by American institutions or to cooperating foreign universities. More common is the summer tour, a peripatetic class supervised by instructors from the sponsoring institution. The typical tour usually grants credit in a single discipline, and includes lecturers and perhaps examinations and extended papers. 1/

Programs of study abroad were relatively few until recently. Earlier statistical studies of summer sessions ignored the topic. A pamphlet issued in 1932 described only 27 foreign and 23 domestic tours for credit. 2/ By contrast, 137 American institutions of higher learning gave credit for educational travel abroad in 1955, and 2,530 American undergraduates were overseas studying in 1956-57. 3/ Properly planned and supervised programs with sound academic standards are educationally useful, but many programs do not meet these qualifications and are simply travel with a thin academic veneer. As recent students of study abroad point out, "...the granting of academic credit for sightseeing can endanger...educational travel by throwing academic standards into question." 4/ Moreover, there has been little attempt to evaluate the programs, which are often loosely attached appendages of the sponsoring institutions and not integrated with their curricula.

This listing of travel programs is a summary of the first section of a forthcoming and comprehensive study of summer sessions in 1960. The data presented here come from a questionnaire circulated by the Office of Education in 1960 to more than 2,000 institutions of higher education in the United States, with a return ratio of over 96 percent. This questionnaire made no attempt to determine motives or quality factors in travel programs. It asked respondent colleges and universities to list the maximum number of credit hours a student might have earned during the summer of 1960 in travel courses. The responses showed that 159 colleges and universities sponsored 185 foreign travel programs and 61 institutions sponsored 62 domestic travel courses. These programs are listed by individual institution on pages 3 to 7. A summary by State is given on page 8.

Areas visited

The returns indicated that Europe, the primary source of American culture and historic international concern, was logically the destination of most of the foreign travel programs in 1960, followed by Latin America and the Middle East. The following indicates the number of courses, by major geographic areas:

Europe	121
Latin America	23
Middle East	8
Around-the-World	4
East Asia	4
Africa	1
South Pacific	1
Areas visited not specified	23
Domestic tours, including Canada	62

Subject fields and credits of courses

The 247 individual travel courses awarded credits in 25 academic fields, or combination of fields are shown in the table below. The most popular are foreign languages (23), art (22), and geography and geology (21). No subject field was designated for 100 courses.

Credit values for the programs, ranging from 2 credits to 15, with the greatest frequencies at 6 credits (95) and 3 credits (49), are shown in the following:

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE Office of Education

REGULAR-YEAR SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAMS OF INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION APPLICABLE FOR SUMMER SESSION STUDY, 1960

By Harold A. Haswell, Bernice R. Retzlaff,
and Donald F. Warner, Programs Branch

OE-55033

This list of scholarship programs is a small section of a comprehensive study of the summer sessions of 1960 which will be subsequently published by the Office of Education. It is being issued separately so that it may be available as soon as possible to students, faculty, and administrators in institutions of higher education.

The data in this list are derived from questionnaires sent to directors of 1960 summer sessions. Of the 2,042 questionnaires sent out, 1,964 were filled out at least in part. The Office wishes to express its appreciation to the directors whose cooperation was responsible for the gratifying return rate of 96.18 percent.

In Part II of the questionnaire, directors were asked whether their institutions had a scholarship program in the regular-year and, if so, whether the benefits of the program were also applicable for summer session. Of the 1,047 institutions which reported regular-year scholarship programs, 367 stated that they were available to undergraduates in the 1960 summer session, and 181 indicated that they were available to graduate students. These institutions are listed below, by State. Although this information relates to the summer sessions of 1960, the continuous growth of financial aid for students in institutions of higher education would make it a presumption that nearly all of the scholarship programs listed here are still applicable, and will continue to be.

This list of programs may be considered as a supplement to a recent Office of Education publication compiled by Richard C. Mattingly and entitled, Financial Assistance for College Students: Undergraduate, College Information Center Series, Bulletin 1962, No. 11, OE-55027 (Washington, 1962). This bulletin lists and describes in some detail the regular-year financial aid programs of 1,745 institutions in 1959-60.
